

WILL FIGHT BE SOON NARROWED?

Idea Prevalent In Madison That Both Cook And McGovern Will Drop Out Of Senatorial Race.

STATE OFFICIALS ARE AT SEA YET

Has Hutton Secured La Follette's Support?—Senator Leaves The State To Be Gone Until Primary Time, It Is Said.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., July 17.—If anyone can find out what the sentiments of the state officials are relative to the senatorial question they will do more than the agents of the four aspirants for office can do. While they all, doubtless, have an opinion well formulated which they are willing to tell they keep as much as an oyster.

Madison is now a side issue to Milwaukee in politics. It is no longer the true shrine for the worshippers of the "demon," politics, to how low to Senator La Follette has issued his ultimatum that he is going out of the state to be gone until just before the primaries and the state officials are too busy with their own business to do or say much.

The only real seat of war appears to be La Follette's law office where his partner, Al Rogers, republican national committeeman, is enthroned. That Rogers is busy and has frequent communication with Milwaukee over the long distance phone and that Chas. Lush, Hutton's right hand man, is a frequent visitor are true, still Rogers preserves the spinsterlike smile which the senatorial question is mentioned.

It was gleaned by careful scrutiny, however, from several sources which may be taken as reliable, that the fight is considered to center between Hutton and Stephenson. It is even intimated that McGovern will withdraw from the contest and Cook declare himself out of the race shortly when public sentiment really becomes crystallized.

No one thinks for a minute that Stephenson will quit. He is in the race to stay. His purse is long and fat yet, despite the heavy loads the "reform campaign" have made in the past. His record is clean and he is backed by influential men all over the state.

Without a doubt Cook expected to draw heavily from the old time reformative element when he came to the front and is disappointed. McGovern and Hutton expected the solid La Follette vote and they are disappointed. Not only is this support divided between the two factions, but Stephenson has secured his share of it and all of the conservative.

Incidentally Stephenson is thought to have the best chance now of winning, having done any real work as yet. Hutton is placed as second and McGovern and Cook in the rear. McGovern failed to instill the enthusiasm he hoped.

for in Madison and is said to be somewhat discouraged by the lack of support of the newspapers he had expected.

Cook opened his campaign in Neenah last night. It was a great reception of friends of the candidate and he was given a good send-off. Meanwhile Stephenson has gone off on a lake trip. Hutton has a Madison and Milwaukee headquarters and is sending out tons of literature.

In this they are following the footsteps of the previous campaigns for reform by pushing their candidate, giving the minutest details of his life and arranging for future shipments of literature that will tend to make the reader sit up and take notice.

Many of the former supporters of the senator are still at sea as to whom to support. Many think that McGovern is the man and only wait who he is to stand for before becoming active. This is an element which will come to Hutton as soon as the election is decided. Question of the making of the legislature is also being discussed.

The announcement that Billy Norcross of Janesville is not to run again has reached here and many of the state officials are frank to state they will make him from the sessions of the legislature. The election of Grant Fisher as his successor is taken for granted and finds approval among those who have known the gentleman in the past and his work for the state in different departments.

There are so many rumors that it is hard to sift the truth out from the campaign discussion. That it will be either Stephenson or Hutton and that all four of the candidates thus far feel that they are sure winners is apparent. One finds more followers of the four in Madison than elsewhere.

Reports from some districts lean towards one or two of the four with Stephenson leading. His age, his wealth and his promise to step down after the short term, appear to be the campaign managers of his adversaries to be their chief stock in trade as campaign issues.

That Jenkins and Lippert are having a hot fight, that Minor and Kuehnman may scrap it out in the North, that Cook and Stephenson will wage a bitter war in Milwaukee and that Nolan and Cooper are going to the limit in the first, all are parts of gossip one hears with no definite results being known.

CARLE TOURING CAR HAD A BAD MISHAP

In Collision With An Elm Tree on South Cherry Street Last Evening—Damage May Total Over $200.

Norman L. Carle's $2,000 Wharton touring car was badly wrecked in a collision with an elm tree on South Cherry street last evening. Contrary to his usual custom and mainly because the young man whom he had picked up near the high school had placed him under heavy obligation by rushing through a punctured tire job during the summer hour, Chaffeur Joseph Rudera allowed George Reed, who is employed as washer at the Peterson garage, to take the wheel. Reed's experience as a driver has been confined mainly to the little hackback automobile which he bought of Chief Klein. In accordance with instructions, Reed was taking one of the jarring cross-walks at an angle, when a lurch caused to accidentally jump down the throttle. Responding to the large "bite" of gasoline dispensed by the accelerator, the machine gave a bound and before he sideways course over the bump could be changed, rammed into the giant tree. The chauffeur and his companion were pitched headlong a distance of ten feet but escaped unhurt. Front axle, steering rods, and fenders were bent and twisted and the engine put out of business by the impact and on the rebound the left rear wheel was wrecked. The battered car was removed to the Peterson garage and will be in the repair shop for several days. It will cost from $150 to $200 and perhaps more to put the machine in commission again.

AFTER THE AFRICAN TRIP

MISSOURI TO HAVE PRIMARY ELECTION

First Trial of the Primary Election Law in Show Mo State in Next Month.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
St. Louis, Mo., July 17.—Early in the coming month, Missouri is to have its first trial of the primary election law. Contributions will be made for all state and county offices and for members of the state legislature, which will have the selection of a successor to United States Senator William J. Stone is a candidate for reelection and is opposed by Governor Folk.

Former Congressman W. S. Cowherd appears to have a good lead in the contest for the democratic nomination for governor, though in order to win out he will have to overcome a spirited opposition. The race started with nearly a score of aspirants, but the field has now narrowed down to Cowherd, David Ball and one or two others.

In regards to the republican ticket it is also pretty well established just who the nominee will be. Attorney General Horbert S. Hilday will be the candidate for governor. For all the other places on the republican ticket, with but two exceptions, there are no contests. All of the present state officers on the republican side are to receive nominations without opposition, excepting in the cases of attorney-general and railroad and warehouse commissioner, for which there are rival aspirants in the field.

Dissatisfaction with the primary system is expressed in many quarters. Objection is made that it is too easy for "favorite sons" to get their names on the ballot, with the result that the factor becomes a blanket sheet which is very confusing to the average voter as well as a source of great expense to the state and counties. In some counties the names of nearly 300 candidates will appear on the ballots.

There were in the parade nearly 15,000 Elks, representing about one hundred lodges scattered from Maine to Honolulu and from Canada to Mexico. The line of march extended over a large part of the business section and through streets which were handsomely decorated with flags and bunting. Visitors poured into the city in the early morning hours to witness the pageant and the route was lined from end to end with thousands of enthusiastic and delighted spectators who loudly cheered the stellar features of the big show. The bands, also came in for a large share of applause from the appreciative public.

The start of the parade was made between nine and ten o'clock this morning. Grand Equine Sullivan acted as grand marshal. The first division consisted of a police escort, officers and members of the grand lodge in decorated carriages and the Dallas lodge acting as escort of honor. Following this division New York lodge No. 1, the parent organization of the order, held the place of honor, with other state lodges following.

Tens of thousands of dollars were represented in the costumes of the marchers. Hundreds of those in blue and white or white duck suits and straw hats with purple bands. But many more were garbed in rich and fantastic costumes that represented some show was made also by some of the lodges from Mexico and from Colorado and the states of the far west. Many magnificent floats, illustrations of the cities whose lodges provided them, were also in the parade.

MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT TO STUMP FOR SOCIALISTS

Keir Hardie, Leader Of Radical Wing Of House Of Commons, Will Come Over In August.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, July 17.—The disappointment of the socialist party in the ways and means of bettering himself. He became interested in the theory of socialism and began what has proven to be an extensive course of reading. He left Ayrshire and went to Leith, where he also worked in the mines. When he was not working he was reading or arguing with his fellow-miners. From Leith he went to the mines of Cumnock and worked and talked there for several years. During this time there were strikes of more or less importance in many of the mines, and in each of these strikes Hardie took a prominent part. His ability as a speaker and his study of socialistic and labor questions had made him valuable in influencing the men to stand together. So, whether he had planned it or not, Keir Hardie's name soon became known in all the border mining regions and from there spread throughout the English speaking world.

He organized the Independent Labor party, which grew slowly in power until in 1892 it was able to elect Hardie to the house of Commons. The solid members of the house were somewhat apprehensive over Hardie's advent in their midst and they received their first shock the day he took his seat. It had been an unwritten law of the house of Commons that each member should wear a black frock coat and a silk hat. Mr. Hardie did not feel bound in any way by this rule, and when he appeared he had on a coarser cap, a cheap and somewhat soiled suit, the coat being of the sack pattern. To say that he created a sensation is to put it mildly. The old members of the Commons were shocked at what seemed to them a sacrilegious trampling upon tradition. But Mr. Hardie was not abashed by the public comment and to this day he continues to wear a cap of all Scottish or North of England miners.

Somewhat or other nature had endowed young Hardie with more brains than fall to the lot of the average Scottish or North of England miner.

By the time he was 17, and was at work underground, he had begun on the ways and means of bettering himself. He became interested in the theory of socialism and began what has proven to be an extensive course of reading. He left Ayrshire and went to Leith, where he also worked in the mines. When he was not working he was reading or arguing with his fellow-miners. From Leith he went to the mines of Cumnock and worked and talked there for several years. (SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., July 17.—The Daily News today says United States Senator Robert M. La Follette will define his position in regard to the United States senatorial situation in Wisconsin at Plattville July 30th, at the Plattville Chautauqua. During a conference with friends at Madison last week it has been decided that no more favorable opportunity will be given him to say what he desires to say on the United States senatorial situation than on that day. His opposition to Mr. Stephenson will, however, be expressed in a criticism of senators elected on reform platform voting as Mr. Stephenson did on the currency and other bills. His opposition to S. A. Cook will come in the form of expressing his belief that men who have at any time opposed the "reform" movement in this state should not be elevated to high offices.

BRYAN'S CHANCES.

In the editorial columns of the El Paso Herald is found the following synopsis of the chances that William Jennings Bryan may have for the presidency. As it is the first theoretical tabulated table of opportunities of the nominee of the Denver convention to be elected president it is interesting.

They are already beginning to guess how the national election is coming out. In order to stimulate Gazette readers to use their wits on something no living man knows anything about, the guess of El Paso's postmaster, who was a delegate to the republican national convention, and who keeps closely in touch with national political affairs is here presented. His table is as follows:

	Taft	Bryan	Doubtful
Alabama	11	9	1
Arkansas	9	10	1
California	10	6	4
Colorado	6	7	1
Connecticut	7	3	1

Of doubtful state votes Taft needs	241

So much for the postmaster's guess
Now for a little analysis

Bryan in an interview declares that "there is no state in which he has not a chance to win." All states are "doubtful states" with him. On the other hand, the Taft managers announce that they feel so sure of the eastern and central states, they will concentrate their forces in the west. One story has it that Taft will go after Tennessee and North Carolina also.

national democratic convention assures Bryan that he will win California. To do so, he will have to overturn a republican plurality in 1904 of 116,000.

Colorado, which the democrats now claim, went 35,000 republican in 1904. Connecticut went 38,000 republican in 1904; Delaware, 4,000 republican in a vote of 42,000; Idaho, 29,000 republican; Illinois, 305,000; Iowa, 159,000; Kansas, 126,000; Maine, 37,000; Massachusetts, 92,000; Michigan, 228,000; Minnesota, 161,000; New Hampshire, 29,000 in a vote of 90,000; North Dakota, 38,000; Ohio, 255,000; Oregon, 43,000 in a vote of 90,000; Pennsylvania, 505,000; Rhode Island, 16,000 in a vote of 63,000; South Dakota, 50,000; Utah, 29,000; Vermont, 31,000; Washington, 73,000; West Virginia, 32,000; Wisconsin, 156,000; Wyoming, 11,000 in a vote of 30,000.

So, it looks as if Bryan will have a hard time turning from Taft any of the states above assigned to him. Of the "doubtful" states in the above table, Indiana in 1904, gave a republican plurality of 94,000; Kentucky went democratic by only 12,000 in a total vote of 436,000, and now has a republican governor; Maryland went republican by 51 plurality in a total vote of 224,000; Missouri went republican by 25,000; Montana went republican by 13,000; Nebraska went republican by 87,000 in a total vote of 224,000; New Jersey went republican by 80,000 in a total vote of 432,000; New York went republican by 176,000 in a total vote of 1,677,000.

If Taft wins any single one of these states (except as to Montana) he will be elected unless Bryan captures some of those assigned to Taft as certain. Taft could lose "certain" states having 66 electoral votes, and yet win if he should get New York, Indiana, and New Jersey.

Bryan, to win, will have to get every single one of the "doubtful" states (except Montana), or their equivalent, 112 votes, out of Taft's column.

Governor Board of Pl. Atkinson is one of Stephenson's earnest supporters. The people learned to trust Board during his administration as governor and his opinion will go a long way towards aiding in the selection of a United States senator.

They can say what they want to about Isaac Stephenson and his wealth; he is the people's choice for United States senator if only to defeat the ring that is seeking his defeat to further their own ends.

It is a funny thing to note that the newspapers who are supporting Cooper for re-nomination are either owned by postmasters or by post-office aspirants and still the postmasters are not supposed to take any part in political campaigns. The office cat must do the work.

The man who thinks he can do things just because his father did them should stop and remember that perhaps his father was a better man and that is stood higher in the respect of the community than he does.

Bryan and his followers count many chickens before they are even in the incubator. The victory at Walla Walla appears now to have been won on merely local issues.

So the Taft republicans are not going to mix in the Foraker-Burton senatorial fight in Ohio.

PRESS COMMENT

It's Only a Puff
Madison Journal: The prohibition war cloud is beginning to pile up on the Wisconsin horizon.

Don Farnsworth's Protege
Milwaukee Sentinel: And there is no evidence that they offered Charlie Towne anything equally as good.

Why Not Abandon the Effort?
Beloit Free Press: There's no use trying to keep Janesville down. Now they claim that the Bender family lived there at one time. Murder will out.

So Say We All of Us
Washington Herald: A Chicago paper says "the air in the average 5 cent theater is bad." Especially the one played on the phonograph, as a rule.

Bob's Knocks Exactly Estimated
Washington Post: Senator La Follette is booked for 100 lectures on the Chautauque circuit this summer. Some of his colleagues now know just how often they can expect to be knocked by the gentleman from Wisconsin.

How Taste Becomes Depraved
Eau Claire Leader: A St. Louis music professor says that "grand opera is trash." That's what comes from living in a brewery center and hanging around beer gardens where little German bands play Wagner music in ragtime.

Kirkland for Senator
Portage Democrat: The democratic candidate for United States senator in Wisconsin should be a man who stands in the front rank of the party. What would be the mitter of naming a man like Robert B. Kirkland of Jefferson.

Classified Mollycoddles
Washington Post: During one of his stirring sermons recently, Billy Sunday paid his compliments to the "fudge-eating mollycoddles," which, we infer, he considers at least three points lower than the watermelon fed variety of Texas.

Being Fair to Uncle Ike
Madison Democrat: Still, Senator Stephenson has just as good a right as the other fellow. We have never been favored with a scrutiny of his alleged remuneration. If it is in existence now is the time for publicity. Until it is forthcoming let's be fair and place opposition on other grounds.

Better Times Ahead
Milwaukee Sentinel: Optimistic

live Engineers, and Charles M. Schwab, the steel magnate, and the reopening of the Lima Locomotive & Machine works, giving employment to 500 mechanics, all recorded in one day, show that the business revival is not a myth.

Sowing to the Wind
El Paso Herald: The Philippines issue is dead, so far as this country is concerned, but the demand of the democratic platform for an immediate declaration of early independence for the islands is calculated to make the task of the government of the Philippines very much harder, by inciting false and unreasonable ideas and expectations among a certain class of the natives.

Neenah and Menasha Uplift
Menasha Record: The Twin cities are to give the Hon. S. A. Cook an endorsement as their candidate for senator by a mass meeting to be held at the armory on Thursday evening. Of course there is to be music and speeches, but the real endorsement will be shown by the crowding of the armory and that this will be done goes without saying. With his home office back of him in his candidacy, S. A. Cook will be a factor in the coming contest that will have to be recognized.

Who Spoiled Koshkonong Fishing?
Milton Junction Telephone: There is much complaint this season about fishermen on account of the apparent security of the many tribes in Lake Koshkonong. Many old anglers in this vicinity have put in hours and days up there this spring with no success. The opinion among many of the best informed is that the lake has been depleted by the solving for carp under supervision of the state warden. It is pointed out that numerous spawning beds of bass, carp and perch are completely destroyed and the increase lost by the dragging of weeds, grass and mud over the beds with the 1000-foot seine during the spawning season. This theory looks very reasonable and a strong indication for the discontinuance of that solving business ought to be started.

Heart to Heart Talks.

IT IS THE RUST.

The idle machine is liable to injury no less than the machine that is in active use.

The idle machine grows rusty. Air and dampness do damage no less than wear and tear. Very soon the coating formed by the corrosion covers the bright metal. The parts become stiff. The machine has suffered injury though it has been subjected to no usage.

What is true of the machine is true of humanity. For instance—

You neglect to exercise the working parts of your body. You indulge them in idleness. They cease to be strengthened by use. They grow flabby. The working force is lessened. Neglect of continued exercise of the parts causes the entire machine of your body to run stiffly. It is the rust.

Or—

You neglect to exercise the working parts of your brain machinery. Mental corrosion follows. The rust of idleness covers the parts. There is only one way to keep your mind bright. It is the way to keep the machine bright—the way of use, of employment, of exercise.

Or—

You neglect to use the moral force that is in you. There is a weakening somewhere. The moral machine begins to let down. Moral corrosion comes. Soon the parts are rusted.

And so of society or government—associated humanity.

Note this:

Neglect of his citizenship by the citizen weakens the working forces of government. When the caucus or the primary or the convention or the ballot-box, each a working part of government, is regarded as of small importance the machinery to work poorly. It breaks down at some point. It is the rust.

And so of the moral forces of society—those of them bring the rust.

Let us therefore keep our bodies from friction by systematic exercise. Our minds bright by using them. Our souls clean by working them.

And, as for society, let us help to keep its working machinery bright and free from the rust that corrodes and destroys.

For County Treasurer.

I wish to present myself as a candidate for nomination for the office of County Treasurer on the republican ticket at the coming primary election. My experience on the County Board of Supervisors, upon which I am serving my fourth term and also many years of work as a bookkeeper have, I believe, qualified me to properly perform the duties of this office and I ask the consideration of the voters of the county.

GALBRAITH AND SON MAY MOVE TO IOWA TO BE NEAR MARKET

Well Known Firm of Horse Importers May Make Headquarters at Ames.

Alexander Galbraith & Son, who have made Janesville their headquarters since 1881, are considering removing from here to Ames, Iowa. A large part of their business is carried on in Iowa and they would thus be nearer their market. The state agricultural college, which is located there, has offered inducements to the firm to make their headquarters at that place and have agreed to see that the firm should procure the necessary land and buildings at a small cost. Other Iowa towns have made bids of like nature, offering land, buildings or bonuses to the firm.

The firm of Alexander Galbraith & Son has made their headquarters in Janesville for the past twenty-seven years and during that time they have imported about two thousand stallions which they have sold all over the middle west. The firm is well known throughout the country and its loss would be considerable to Janesville. The Wisconsin laws relative to notes taken in payment for a stallion make such notes non-negotiable. The Iowa laws allow such notes to be negotiable and this is another inducement toward removing to Iowa. Until Mr. Alexander Galbraith returns from his present trip in Scotland nothing definite will be done however.

be sure you are getting the most for your money. It is the same in buying feed as in buying other articles—the cheapest is not always the best money-saver.

Good clean feed or hay will do your stock more good than the feed which is of poorer quality and with a low price.

Our aim is quality first and then as low a price as possible. To do this we buy in car lots and get the best at a fair price. Our stock is complete and we are never "just out." If you don't find what you want in the following list let us know:

Timothy and mixed hay, out and rye straw, oats, corn, ground corn and outs, ground barley, whole barley wheat, cracked corn, corn meal, oil meal, bran, midds, rock salt, calf meal, poultry and stock foods, mixed grain, chick feeds, duck feed, and all kinds of poultry supplies.

Fatal.—A man named Harvey Reynolds, a miller by profession, died of sunstroke at Jefferson yesterday. He was a resident of this city and his remains will be brought here for interment.

Fire.—The most thorough fire alarm that was ever sounded in the city, was that given very early this morning on the occasion of the burning of the shanty of Mitchell Conroy, near Millmore's stone quarry.

Not only did the engine bells keep up an incessant and long continued din, but the church bells added their peals to the general awakening. The fire is supposed to have been communicated from a locomotive.

London, July 17.—In the house of Commons last night, Lord Stanley made an important statement. He said that reply had been sent to the United States government with regard to naturalization. Ministers are ready to accept the American interpretation of the question. He thought that there could not possibly be a misunderstanding between the two countries. He said he had declined to make a treaty at present.

Lightning Rods Sold By
D. M. Barless Endorsed
By Wisconsin Mutual
Insurance Association

Mr. Barless has been handling the lightning rods manufactured by the famous manufacturers, Dodd & Struthers, of Des Moines. This firm is the originator of the pure soft copper lightning rods which are being imitated so generally throughout the country. These rods, however, are far superior to anything else in this line and Mr. Barless is being rewarded by the public approval of his goods.

The following resolution of endorsement and appreciation from the Wisconsin Mutual Insurance Association bears hearty testimony to these rods, and when it is considered that fully three-fourths of all losses paid by insurance companies are due to lightning it will be seen readily why they give this matter such consideration:

"Whereas, Prof. Dodd of Des Moines, Iowa, has so ably presented to us the facts concerning the laws and nature of lightning and how to control it.

"Therefore be it Resolved, That we recognize Prof. Dodd as a friend of all mutual fire insurance companies, and we cheerfully recommend to our members his methods of protecting buildings and live stock from loss by lightning; and we hereby tender him our thanks for his able, instructive and entertaining address."

HE AVOIDS BROWNSVILLE

BRYAN WILL NOT BE DRAWN INTO THE CONTROVERSY.

Denies Statement That He Called President's Action Unjust—Sticks to the Platform.

Fairview, Lincoln, Neb., July 17.—William J. Bryan does not intend to be drawn into the Brownsville case if he can help it. In all his conversations with visiting delegations and others he has carefully refrained from talking on that subject, and Thursday he put the brand of untruthfulness upon an alleged statement made by Bishop Walters of the Afro-Methodist Episcopal church, to the effect that he had assured a negro delegation that he regarded President Roosevelt's action in that matter as unjust.

At the same time he also denied another alleged interview of the bishop that he had discussed the appointment of negroes to office. These declarations were called forth by a telegram from the Baltimore Sun inquiring as to the truth of the statements said to have emanated from Bishop Walters. To the newspaper men at Fairview Mr. Bryan said that he had not taken and would not take up any issue not contained in the platform.

The Soap Does the Work.

That's the difference between P. & G. Naphtha Soap and ordinary laundry soap.

When you use ordinary laundry soap, YOU do the work.

When you use P. & G. Naphtha Soap, the work is done for you—the SOAP does it.

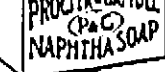

There's the difference.

In one case, it takes you from seven in the morning till four in the afternoon to get through the washing; and every bit of the work is hard.

In the other case, the work is done in half that time; and every bit of it is easy.

Read these simple, easy directions and compare them with your present method of washing clothes:

TO WASH WHITE CLOTHES:—Dip each piece in lukewarm water. Rub soap on the soiled parts and roll up. Pack rolls in a tub and cover with lukewarm (not hot) water. Let them soak half an hour or longer. The very soiled pieces may be soaked over night. Fill a tub half full of lukewarm (not hot) water; unroll each piece and rub soiled parts on the washboard, using fresh soap. The dirt will come out with little or no rubbing. Rinse in two warm waters and blue in a third cooler water. Excepting in cases of sickness, clothes need not be boiled. Hang them up to dry in sunshine and fresh air.

5 Cents a Cake—Worth More.

"I am not into the proper court and make application, that's all," he volunteered cheerfully. "The judge will do the rest. Does your husband approve of the plan?"

"It doesn't know anything about it," "What's that?"

"I can't tell him. It would spoil everything."

"My dear madam, I don't believe I understand you quite clearly. You want to adopt the child and keep the matter dark so far as your husband is concerned? May I inquire the reason?"

Hansomer naturally was interested in this time.

"If you have time to listen, I'd like to tell you how it all comes about. It won't take long. I want some one to tell me just what to do, and I'll pay for the advice, if it isn't too expensive. I'm very poor, Mr. Hansomer. Perhaps you won't care to help me after you know that I can't afford to pay very much."

"We'll see about that later," he said brusquely. "Go ahead with the story."

The young woman hesitated, glanced nervously at her sister as if for support and finally faced the expectant lawyer with a look of determination in her dark eyes. As she proceeded Hansomer silently and somewhat disbelievingly made a study of the speaker. He concluded that she was scarcely of common origin and was the possessor of a superficial education that had been enlarged by concealment. Furthermore, she was a person of solid instincts, but without the usual cruel impulses.

There was little, if any, sign of true refinement in the features, and yet there was a strange strength of purpose that puzzled him. As her story progressed he solved the puzzle. She had the strength to carry out a purpose that might further her own personal interests, but not the will to endure sacrifice for the sake of another. Her sister was larger and possessed a reserve that might have been mistaken for goodness. He felt that she was hardly in sympathy with the motives of the younger, more volatile woman.

"My husband is a railroad engineer and is ten years older than I," the narrator said in the beginning. "I wasn't quite nineteen when we were married, two years ago. For some time we got along all right; then we began to quarrel. He commenced to—"

"Mr. Hansomer is in a hurry, I am," broke in the older sister sharply, and then, repeating the lawyer's words, "be as brief as possible."

There was a world of reproach in the look which greeted the speaker. Evidently it was a grievous disappointment not to be allowed to linger over the details.

"Well," she continued half pettishly, "it all ended by his leaving home, John and everything. I had told him that I was going to apply for a divorce. For three months I never heard from him."

"Did you apply for a divorce?" asked the lawyer, stilling a yawn.

"No, sir, I did not, although he did nothing toward my support. The woman could not resist a slightly coquettish attempt to enlist Hansomer's sympathy. "I obtained work at St. Luke's Hospital For Foundlings and after that as a governess. But once a week I went back to the asylum to see the little ones. One day they brought in a beautifully dressed baby—a girl. She was found on a doorstep, and in the basket was a note asking that she be well cared for. With it was a hundred dollar bill. The moment I saw the little thing I fell in love with her. I made application, and they gave me the child with the understanding that I was to adopt it. You see, I was lonely. I had been living alone for nine or ten months. The authorities knew nothing of my trouble with Mr. Cable—that's my husband, David Cable. The child was about a month old when I took her to his mother, whom I hadn't seen in months. I told Mrs. Cable that she was mine. The dear old lady believed me; half the battle was won."

"And then?" he asked, once more interested.

"We both wrote to David asking him to come home to his wife and baby. She looked away guiltily. For a full minute Hansomer did not speak.

"The result?" he demanded.

"He came back last month."

"Does he know the truth?"

"No, and with God's help he never shall! It's my only intention!" she exclaimed.

claimed emotionally. "I think she is his baby and—"

The tears were on her cheeks now. "I worship him, Mr. Hansomer! Oh, how good and sweet he has been to me since he came back! Now, don't you see why I must adopt this child and why he must never know? If he learned that I had deceived him in this way he would hate me to my dying day."

The infant was awake and staring at him with wide blue eyes.

"And you want me to handle this matter so that your husband will be none the wiser?"

"Oh, Mr. Hansomer," she cried, "it means everything to me! All depends on this baby. I must adopt her or the asylum people won't let me keep her. Can't it be done so quickly that he'll never find it out?"

"How many people know that the child is not yours?"

"My sister and the authorities at the asylum; not another soul."

"It is possible to arrange the adoption, Mrs. Cable, but I can't guarantee that Mr. Cable will not find it out. The records will show the fact, you know. There is but one way to avoid discovery."

"And that, please?"

"Leave New York and make your home in some distant city. That's the safe way. If you remain here there is always a chance that he may find out. I see the position you're in, and I'll help you. It can be done quite regularly, and there is only one thing you'll have to fear—your own tongue."

"I hate New York, Mr. Hansomer. David likes the west, and I'll go anywhere on earth if it will keep him from finding out. Oh, if you know how he loves her!" she cried, regret and ecstasy mingling in her voice. "I'd give my soul if she were only mine!"

Hansomer's heart was too roughly caloused to be touched by the wistful longing in these words.

Before the end of the week the adoption of the foundling babe was a matter of record, and the unsuspecting David Cable was awaiting a reply from the trainmaster of a big western railroad to whom, at the earnest, even eager solicitation of his wife, he had applied for work. Elias Droom made a note of the fee in the daybook at the office, but asked no questions. Hansomer had told him nothing of the transaction, but he was confident that the unspeakable Droom knew all about it even though he had not been nearer than the outer office during any of the consultations.

CHAPTER V.

WENTY long years had passed since David and Frances Cable took their hasty departure, virtually fleeing from New York city, their migrations finally ending in that thriving western city—Denver. Then the grime of the engine was on Cable's hands and deep beneath his skin; the roar of iron and steel and the rush of wind were ever in his ears, the quest of danger in his eye, but there were love, pride and a high ambition in his heart. Now, in 1888, David Cable's hands were white with the engineer's cap had given way to the silk tie of the magnate, and the shovel was a memory.

But his case was not unique in that day and age of pluck and luck. Many another man had gone from the bottom to the top with the speed and security of the elevator car in the lofty skyscrapers. In the heartless revolution of a few years he became the successor of his western benefactor. The turn that had been kind to him was unkind to his friend and predecessor. The path that led upward for David Cable ran the other way for the trainmaster, who years afterward died in his greasy overalls and the close fitting cap of an engineer. One night Cable read the news of the wreck with all the joy gone from his heart.

From the cheap, squallid section of town known as "Railroad End" Cable's rising influence carried him to the well earned luxury. The lines of care and toll mellowed in the face of his pretty wife as the years rolled by. Her comely figure shed the cheap raiment of "hard old days" and took on the plumage of prosperity. Trouble, resentment and worry disappeared as if by magic, smoothed out by the sunny touch of comfort's fingers. She went upward much faster than her husband, for her ambitions were less exacting. She longed to shine socially. He loathed the thought of it. But Cable was proud of his wife. He enjoyed the transition that lifted her up with steady strength to the plane which fitted her best, as he regarded it. She had stuck by him nobly and uncompromisingly through the vicissitudes; it delighted him to give her the pleasures.

Frances Cable was proud, but she had not been too proud to stand beside the man with the greasy overalls, and to bend her knee to him; "stretches" to work in unison with his. Together, facing the task, cheerfully they had battled and won.

There were days when it was hard to smile, but the next day always brought with it a fresh sign of hope. The rough, hard days in the far west culminated in his elevation to the office of general manager of the great railroad system, whose headquarters and home were in the city of Chicago. Attending this high place two years prior to the opening of this narrative, he was regarded now as one of the brilliant railroad men and slated to be president of the road at the next meeting.

Barely past fifty years of age, David Cable was in the prime of life and usefulness. Age and prosperity had improved him greatly. The iron gray of his hair, the keen brightness of his face, the erect and soldierly carriage of his person, made him a striking figure. His wife, ten years his junior, was one of the most attractive women in Chicago. Her girlish beauty had withered under the blasts of adversity. Years had not been unkind to her. In a way she was the leader of a certain set, but her social attributes were not content. There was a higher altitude in fashion's realm. Money, influence and perseverance were her allies, social despotism her only adversary.

The tall, beautiful and accomplished daughter of the Cables was worshipped by her father with all the warmth and ardor of his soul. Times there were when he looked in wonder upon this arbiter of not a few many destinies and for his life could not help asking himself how the Creator had given him such a being for a child, commenting on the fact that she bore resemblance to neither parent.

For years Mrs. Cable had lived in no little terror of some day being found out. As the child grew to womanhood the fears gradually diminished, and a sense of security that would not be disturbed replaced them. Then just as she was reaching out for the chief prizes of her ambition she came face to face with a man whose visage she never had forgotten—Elias Droom! And Frances Cable looked again into the old and terrifying shadow.

It was late in the afternoon, and she was crossing the sidewalk to her carriage, waiting near Field's, when a man brushed against her. She was conscious of a strange oppressiveness. Before she turned to look at him she knew that a pair of staring eyes were upon her face. Something seemed to have closed relentlessly upon her heart.

One glance was sufficient. The tall, angular form stood almost over her; the two white blue eyes looked down in folded surprise; the never to be forgotten voice greeted her hoarsely: "Good afternoon, Mrs. Cable! And how is the baby?"

"The baby?" she faltered. Struggle against it as she would, a sort of fascination drew her gaze toward the remarkable face of the old clerk. "Why—why—she's very well, thank you," she finally stammered. Her face was as white as a ghost. With a shudder she started to pass him. Droom blocked the way.

"She was such a pretty little thing, I remember," and then enthusiastically, "Where is her father now?"

It was late in the afternoon, and she was crossing the sidewalk to her carriage, waiting near Field's, when a man brushed against her. She was conscious of a strange oppressiveness. Before she turned to look at him she knew that a pair of staring eyes were upon her face. Something seemed to have closed relentlessly upon her heart.

One glance was sufficient. The tall, angular form stood almost over her; the two white blue eyes looked down in folded surprise; the never to be forgotten voice greeted her hoarsely: "Good afternoon, Mrs. Cable! And how is the baby?"

"The baby?" she faltered. Struggle against it as she would, a sort of fascination drew her gaze toward the remarkable face of the old clerk. "Why—why—she's very well, thank you," she finally stammered. Her face was as white as a ghost. With a shudder she started to pass him. Droom blocked the way.

"She was such a pretty little thing, I remember," and then enthusiastically, "Where is her father now?"

There were days when it was hard to smile, but the next day always brought with it a fresh sign of hope. The rough, hard days in the far west culminated in his elevation to the office of general manager of the great railroad system, whose headquarters and home were in the city of Chicago. Attending this high place two years prior to the opening of this narrative, he was regarded now as one of the brilliant railroad men and slated to be president of the road at the next meeting.

Barely past fifty years of age, David Cable was in the prime of life and usefulness. Age and prosperity had improved him greatly. The iron gray of his hair, the keen brightness of his face, the erect and soldierly carriage of his person, made him a striking figure. His wife, ten years his junior, was one of the most attractive women in Chicago. Her girlish beauty had withered under the blasts of adversity. Years had not been unkind to her. In a way she was the leader of a certain set, but her social attributes were not content. There was a higher altitude in fashion's realm. Money, influence and perseverance were her allies, social despotism her only adversary.

The tall, beautiful and accomplished daughter of the Cables was worshipped by her father with all the warmth and ardor of his soul. Times there were when he looked in wonder upon this arbiter of not a few many destinies and for his life could not help asking himself how the Creator had given him such a being for a child, commenting on the fact that she bore resemblance to neither parent.

For years Mrs. Cable had lived in no little terror of some day being found out. As the child grew to womanhood the fears gradually diminished, and a sense of security that would not be disturbed replaced them. Then just as she was reaching out for the chief prizes of her ambition she came face to face with a man whose visage she never had forgotten—Elias Droom! And Frances Cable looked again into the old and terrifying shadow.

It was late in the afternoon, and she was crossing the sidewalk to her carriage, waiting near Field's, when a man brushed against her. She was conscious of a strange oppressiveness. GOOD YEAR FROM THE FARMERS' STANDPOINT

Hay Crop Is Excellent—Small Grains Progressing Very Nicely—Other Crops.

This year promises to be a good year for hay and grain as the hay is already cut or nearly ready for cutting and the other crops are coming along splendidly except for a few cases of rust getting the rye. The timothy has been cut and is beginning to come into the market, two loads being brought into town yesterday. The clover will soon be ready for market as the farmers are beginning to cut their hay. Hay will probably be worth about seven or eight dollars this fall. The outlook for the rest of the crop is also fine.

JUMPED THE TRACKS AT THE CROSSINGS

Street Cars Have Difficulty on the Academy Street Crossing Recently.

Owing to the poor condition of the tracks of the Janesville Street Railway company where they cross the tracks of the North-Western and St. Paul railroads, several of the cars have jumped the track quite frequently of late, going off as many as five times in one day. Several times have had to stop and wait until the cars have been put back on and the Mineral Point train had to be flagged to prevent it from running into a car.

NEW TURRET NOZZLE WAS TESTED THIS AFTERNOON

Another Exhibition Will Be Given at Seven Sharp This Evening in the Janesville Machine Co. Area.

The fire department's new turret nozzle was given a try-out in the Janesville Machine Co.'s area this afternoon and will be tested again at seven o'clock sharp this evening. The apparatus is mounted on one of the hose-wagons and is fed by two loads of hose. Like a piece of ordnance, it can be directed at any angle and keeps its position until changed, requiring little or no effort in its operation. It throws 1,100 gallons a minute with a 2 1/2-inch nozzle and 100 lbs. pressure at the nozzle. With a two-inch nozzle and 100 lbs. pressure it throws 1,000 gallons a minute. With a 1 1/2-inch nozzle it throws 875 gallons a minute. This latter stream is the more practical one in most instances and will be the gauge tonight.

AMERICAN SOLDIERS RECEIVING NEWS OF THE SURRENDER OF SANTIAGO.

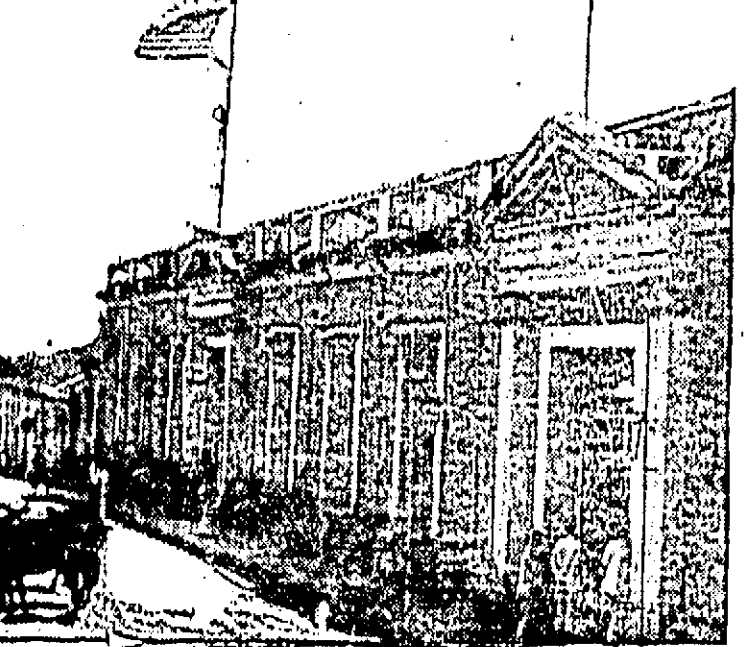

"Hats off for Cuba!" when the news came to the waiting army ten years ago that Tora had sent in his surrender and the commanding officer, with the cavalry that marked all the campaign with Spain, said: "Don't cheer, boys. We don't want to make it too hard for the poor devils."

And the boys did not cheer, but every hat went up in the air and the whisper of joy swept like breeze through the ranks.

After the meeting between the commanding officers of both armies under the cypress tree, where the articles of capitulation were signed the "boys" were more open in their jubilation. When the beloved stars and stripes fluttered to the breeze over the
